McQuaid reveals Armstrong made two donations to the UCI

By: Stephen Farrand  Published: July 10, 2010, 06:28  Updated: July 10, 2010, 07:24

President insists Armstrong has never had favourable treatment

The president of the International Cycling Union Pat McQuaid has revealed to Cyclingnews that Lance Armstrong made not one, but two donations to the UCI. Speaking to Cyclingnews during a visit to Britain, McQuaid said that the seven-time Tour de France winner signed a personal cheque for $25,000 in 2002 and then his management company Capital Sports and Entertainment made a second payment of $100,000 in 2005.

In recent weeks McQuaid has come under fire for the UCI accepting donations from Armstrong, who is still competing and so still faces regular anti-doping tests. Any donations could lead to a possible conflict of interest and McQuaid admitted during the Giro d'Italia that in hindsight, accepting Armstrong's donation may have been a mistake.

Looking to deflect any possible accusations of favouritism, especially with Armstrong at the centre of a widening investigation following the doping allegations made by Floyd Landis, the UCI has dug through its archives.

McQuaid showed Cyclingnews a photocopy of the invoice of the Sysmex blood testing machine that a large part of Armstrong $100,000 donation was used to buy. He refused to let us take a photograph of it, keeping it in a file marked 'Confidential'.

"I said during the Giro d'Italia in May that we were going to investigate and look into the archives to discover exactly what happened. That's what we've done," McQuaid said.

"Armstrong said he paid $25,000 but I also knew he paid $100,000," he added. "There was other speculation about amounts but they were way out. We've now found out exactly what was donated by looking at our records in detail. They show that Lance, in May 2002, paid a personal cheque, signed by himself and his wife, for $25,000. That went into the funds of what was then the Anti-Doping Council. They decide to use the money for anti-doping tests on juniors, to separate it from Armstrong, because he was racing at the time. We have record of the four or five races where special tests were done. It was all budgeted and paid for."

"Then in 2005, just at the time Armstrong retired, he promised $100,000. At that time we needed a Sysmex machine, so we ordered it and we paid for it based on the pledge he had made. Why it took him so long to eventually pay up I don't know, you'd have to ask him. It came from his company CSE. And the fact that the $100,000 came from CSE explains to me why he said $25,000. He may not have directly known about the later $100,000 donation."

Defending Lance

McQuaid has often defended Armstrong, yet has been openly critical of Floyd Landis even if the World Anti-Doping Agency is doing everything it can to assist the investigation to his allegations. McQuaid justifies his support for Armstrong because of the huge public and media attention he brings to cycling.

"I defend Lance because he's one of the greatest athletes in our sport but I would vehemently deny that he has ever received any favourable treatment from us," McQuaid said. "There are several reasons why I do that. First of all, he's an incredible athlete. He was the youngest ever world champion at just 21, he then went on to win seven Tour de Frances. He's also involved in saving peoples' lives with the work he does against cancer.

"Then if you look at cycling, there have only been two truly global stars: Eddy Merckx and Lance Armstrong," he added. "If you go Kuala Lumpur, the man in the street would know who Lance Armstrong is. If you ask him who Fabian Cancellara is, he wouldn't have a clue."

"That's why I'm happy to work with him to help develop the sport of cycling. It's only normal that as we try and globalise the sport, we have good relation with the biggest star of the sport. Every sport does that. It doesn't mean he gets different treatment. Everyone still has to follow rules. Lance does all the tests like everyone else and there's absolutely nothing wrong with his biological passport."
McQuaid insists that he is not worried about the alleged US Federal investigation sparked by Landis’ accusations against Armstrong and other former teammates during his time at the US Postal Service team.

“We haven’t been contacted by anyone in the USA, but if we are, we’ll tell them everything we know. They can study our books. We’ve nothing to hide,” he said. “Obviously it’d be a worry if becomes a long drawn out investigation and then nothing happens. Look at the Balco investigation. That cost the US government 50 million dollars and what did it achieve at the end of the day?”

“I believe that it’s up to the authorities and the scientific community to catch these guys while they’re doing it,” he added. “Re-opening things from the past and spending a lot of time and a lot of money isn’t the answer.”

“Doping has been going on in sport for centuries. Do we really want to go backwards all the time and keep opening investigations for accusation that someone makes? I’d rather concentrate on the present and future. Since becoming UCI President I’ve tried to work on today and tomorrow. That’s where I we can make a difference.”

Follow Cyclingnews on Twitter for the very latest coverage of events taking place in the cycling world - twitter.com/cyclingnewsfeed

To catch up on the latest rankings visit the IG Pro Cycling Index at: www.cyclingnews.com/ig

Related articles

- Armstrong keeps his cool despite heat, saddle sore
  Seven-time winner expects to suffer again on the Col de la Ramaz
  July 10, 2010, 23:06

- Armstrong's Tour challenge collapses
  American involved in three crashes on the road to Morzine
  July 11, 2010, 17:03

- Hincapie and Hamilton approached by federal investigators
  Former US Postal riders rumoured to speak with Novitzky
  July 10, 2010, 10:33

- McQuaid suggests US Postal investigation sparked by personal vendetta
  UCI President bemoans public nature of inquiry
  August 17, 2010, 11:14

- McQuaid has no objection to Landis conference appearance
  UCI President says he has not been contacted by US federal investigators
  September 24, 2010, 11:54

- McQuaid criticises Spanish government
  UCI President says recent positive tests unacceptable
  October 2, 2010, 13:00

- Schenk encourages independent investigation of UCI
  Former German federation president hopes UCI can restore its credibility
  February 7, 2011, 12:38

Related riders

- Lance Armstrong retired
  Lance Armstrong retired in 2011. Before that he had one of the most successful but controversial careers in professional cycling. He won 7 Tour de France from 1999 to 2005, after coming back from cancer.

  Lance Armstrong retired from the sport in 2005 only to announce a comeback in 2009. He rode for Astana in 2009, finishing third in the Tour de France. The following season he again rode the Tour but failed to challenge for the yellow jersey. He made his last professional outing at the 2011 Tour Down Under.

Related teams

- Team Radioshack

FROM AROUND THE WEB
| Essential Gadgets for Cyclists | Tech Hive (tech hive) | This is what 4,500 hp worth of V8 Miatas looks like (Autoblog) | Who makes more from the pump – industry or government? (ExxonMobil's Perspectives) | New Chevrolet Volt App Calculates Charging Cost, Total EV Miles Driven (Wide Open Throttle Auto Blog) | GM puts brakes on Volt production (The Business Journal) |

---

Ads by Google

MAZDA3 SKYACTIV
Up to 40 MPG Highway. Check out the MAZDA3 Image Gallery.
www.MazdaUSA.com

Joint Relief Ages 55+
Find out how GNC's #1 selling joint product is helping people in 7 days
Instaflex.com

ITT Tech - Official Site
Convenient Schedules, Over 130 Locations. Browse New Programs.
www.ITT-Tech.edu

---

Road Races & Events
- Tour de France
- Giro d'Italia
- Vuelta a Espana
- Anian Tour of California
- USA CRITS
- 2012 Olympic Games
- Sea Otter Classic

Cyclingnews.com
- About us / contacts
- Cycling News HD - Weekly Cycling Magazine
- Register for the forum
- Bike magazines & subscriptions
- Facebook
- Twitter

In Cyclingnews.com
- Road
- Mountain Biking
- Track
- Cyclo-Cross
- News
- Racing and Results
- Tech
- Features
- Blogs
- Fitness
- Photos
- Video

Forums
- Road
- Mountain Bike
- Track
- Cross
- Tech

Road Races & Events
- Tour de France
- Giro d'Italia
- Vuelta a Espana
- Anian Tour of California
- USA CRITS
- 2012 Olympic Games
- Sea Otter Classic

Road Mountain Bike Track Cross Tech

Sister Brands
- BikeRadar
- Bikely
- ChopMTB
- Cycling News HD
- TriRadar

---

Road Mountain Biking Track Cyclo-Cross News Racing and Results Tech Features Blogs Fitness Photos Video

---

Magazines
- Procycling
- Cycling-Plus
- Triathlon
- What Mountain Bike
- Mountain Biking UK

---

TechRadar
- GamesRadar
- PC Gamer
- ComputerAndVideoGames
- BikeRadar
- T3
- Total Film
- MusicRadar
- Edge
- Metal Hammer
- Creative Bloq
- SFX
- Classic Rock
- Fast Car
- Mollie Makes
- Gizmodo UK

---

Jobs | Press | Advertising | Privacy Policy | Cookies Policy | Terms & Conditions | International | DigitalFuture | Magazine Subscriptions | Future MediaStore

© Future Publishing Limited, Beauford Court, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath BA1 2BW. All rights reserved. England and Wales company registration number 2008885.